Prior to working as an independent consultant and trainer, Karen had a successful thirty year career in Children's Services. She has worked with local authorities, and other public and voluntary sector organisations, across the U.K, in addition to working as a consultant to the Ugandan government. Her career spans both the statutory and voluntary sector and from 2006 – 2010 Karen worked at Director level in England and Wales.

Karen is an experienced safeguarding peer reviewer and sector specialist. She has delivered safeguarding training across the U.K. and has reviewed Local Authority practice in England and Wales.

As a master practitioner of Neuro Linguistic Programming and qualified Coach, Karen has developed and presented coaching and mentoring programs to Local Authority and private sector customers. She has provided individual coaching to senior executives, practitioners and athletes.

Karen has researched and published work capturing the experience of disabled children and their families and Karen's Ph.D. examined the impact of gender and ethnicity on the experience of mothers.
