

Liz Harkin

Liz has worked within a children's social care setting for 23 years specialising in child protection and safeguarding. Over that time, she has not only worked extensively as a front - line practitioner, she gained a significant level of management at both a team and a senior level.

With a wealth of experience and expertise, Liz decided to set up her own consultancy business four years ago to concentrate on working within local authority settings as a senior interim manager as well as reviewing and consulting on children's social care safeguarding and child protection services.

Liz also has completed a number of Serious Case Reviews as either Chair or Overview Author and more recently, as well as reviewing local authority service provision, now delivers training related to practice implication related to Serious Case Review research. She has also been involved as a Support Advisor to the CWDC NQSW pilot programme.
